Department of Labor placing new emphasis on wage and hour enforcement

“Make no mistake, the DOL is back in the enforcement business,” said U.S. Secretary of Labor Hilda Solis at the June 2009 conference of the American Society of Safety Engineers. In keeping with that commitment, the federal government’s proposed budget for 2011 includes $244 million for the Department of Labor’s Wage and Hour Division. The DOL is expected to add 350 new investigators and is making wage and hour violations a top priority.

“Of nearly 3,000 class/collective action lawsuits filed in federal or state court through August of 2010, approximately 89% were wage- and hour-related complaints,” said Josh Kirkpatrick, an attorney who represents employers in areas of employment and labor law. Speaking on an ADP webcast last May, he noted that the DOL estimates that 70% of employers are out of compliance with the Fair Labor Standards Act.

What should you watch out for?

“Apply pay policies and rounding rules fairly and consistently,” Mr. Kirkpatrick warned. “At least 15 cases alleging improper rounding were filed in federal district courts over the past two and a half years.” In particular, the DOL and plaintiff-side employment attorneys look for companies that always round down, but never up.

In addition, make sure your timekeeping system accurately captures hours for remote workers. Mr. Kirkpatrick cited a $15 million settlement by a large retailer for failing to properly pay employees who began their workday at home by checking their computers.

Prohibit off-the-clock work

Citing a $53.3 million dollar settlement by a large supermarket chain, Mr. Kirkpatrick advised employers to prohibit managers from requesting or requiring off-the-clock work, or even suggesting that it is acceptable. Employers should:

- Require employees to accurately record all work hours and submit completed time records that they certify as accurate in a timely manner.
- Require managers to review time records and immediately identify inaccuracies.
- Require managers to report all suspected off-the-clock work so that it can be investigated and corrected.
- Prohibit employees from reporting to stations before start time.
- Discipline employees for not properly clocking in and out.
- In the event of a wage and hour audit, be ready to provide accurate, indisputable records of hours worked.

“Automating your time and attendance can be one of the easiest ways to improve your ability to comply with wage and hour regulations,” says Lisa Lane, VP, ADP Time and Labor Management Services. “The software is specifically designed to enforce your policies, flag failures to comply, and manage these complexities.”

ADP is helping clients to save significant sums on workers who qualify for the HIRE Act

The HIRE Act eliminates the 6.2% Employer Social Security Tax for eligible new hires, generating immediate savings that can improve your bottom line. You can save significantly on each qualifying employee, whether you hire hundreds of new workers, or just one.

For companies that do not want to be burdened with the administrative and compliance requirements of the HIRE Act, ADP offers an outsourced solution through its Tax Credit Services (TCS) division. This offering includes:

- Pre-Selection – ADP screens new hires to identify eligible employees.
- Report Eligibility – ADP provides daily reports of employees who are eligible.
- Employee Affidavits – ADP offers convenient options for new hires to complete the certification by affidavit process.
- Compliance Support – ADP runs regular compliance reports to help ensure eligible new hires have completed the affidavit process.
- Documentation and Audit Support – ADP houses and maintains all employee certification documentation and assists you in responding to related audits.
- Tax Credit Administration – ADP notifies you of the availability of the $1,000 per qualified employee new-hire income tax credit after the eligible employee completes 52 weeks of employment. ■

HELPFUL HINTS FOR 401(k) PLAN ADMINISTRATORS

Increasing participation among younger employees

One key to saving successfully for retirement is to start early and let compounding do the work for you. But young worker participation in 401(k) plans tends to be low. Retirement seems ages away to Generation Y employees, who are often preoccupied with making rent, insurance, and student loan payments. If they're saving at all, it's often for a car or home. They may also worry that they'll be unable to take their retirement savings if they switch jobs.

The solution is employee education. Acknowledge the concerns of younger employees and explain how even modest contributions can add up. Explain also that 401(k) savings are portable and can be transferred to your next employer's plan, or to an individual retirement account, and that most plans allow you to borrow money against your retirement savings.

For information on ADP Retirement Services offerings, check item #13 on the Reader Service Form; call 1 800 432-401k, Promo Code 454; or visit www.ADP.com.

Start preparing now for year-end 2010

The end of the 2010 tax year is approaching. Here are some important steps you should take to close out the current year and prepare for the next:

- Review your current 2010 payroll schedule and note your scheduled final payroll for this year. Your payroll file will be closed within 72 hours of processing this payroll. If you need to add another payroll to 2010, or will not be running your currently scheduled final payroll, contact the ADP Client Service Department immediately.
- You will receive an ADP 2011 Payroll Schedule and Payroll Calendar. Verify that next year's pay dates, period ending dates, and quarter closing dates are as you intended.
- Verify that next year's management reports are scheduled for the correct weeks and allow for any bonus or adjustment payrolls.
- Verify that the month-end dates are accurate on the In Line Monthly Summary schedule.
- Verify special accumulators and clearings on the Master Control and set up any new accumulators for 2011.
- Review ADP's Quarterly Tax Verification letter, Client Files Reporting System letter, and Year-End Client Booklets to verify the accuracy of your company's information.
- Request the Interim Wage and Tax Register and review the employee data, the State/SUI Credit report for employees who have a "quarter" credit condition, and the SIT Credit report for employees who have a "year-end" credit condition.
- Enter and verify special compensation options, such as group term life, third-party sick pay, long-term disability, taxable fringe benefits, deferred compensation, and qualified pension.
- Contact ADP to schedule bonus and adjustment payrolls.
- Make sure you have the necessary supplies to wrap up 2010 and begin 2011, including blank checks, payroll forms, blank W-2s, and employee calendar cards.
- Contact an ADP Client Support Specialist and request your Preview W-2s. Check them for correct pension coding, missing third-party sick pay postings, and other possible errors. ■

Visit www.complianceconnection.ADP.com for step-by-step guidance on what you should do before your last payroll of the calendar year – and what you should do after your last payroll, but BEFORE the first payroll of the new calendar year.

FSA coverage for OTC drugs ends January 1, 2011

Also applies to 2½-month grace period for the 2010 FSA year

Effective January 1, 2011, the cost of over-the-counter (OTC) medications will no longer be payable through a Flexible Spending Account (FSA), unless the medication was prescribed by a doctor.

This change affects employees who set aside FSA funds for such OTC medications as Sudafed, Claritin, Prilosec, or Zyrtec. Insulin is exempt, but the change also applies to OTC drugs purchased with leftover funds from a 2010 calendar year FSA during its 2½-month grace period in 2011. There are two work-arounds you can recommend:

1. Advise employees with remaining FSA funds for 2010 to stock up on OTC medicines before January 1, 2011.
2. For purchases after December 31, many doctors will write a prescription for OTC drugs. Although it is an extra step that could require a doctor's visit — a possible additional expense — it may still be worth the time and effort.

Advise employees to keep this change in mind when making their 2011 FSA elections. They can still be reimbursed for OTC drugs, but they'll have to submit documentation of a doctor's prescription. ■

U.S. Treasury discontinuing paper savings bonds through payroll deductions

Seeking to minimize the administrative cost and environmental impact of paper-based transactions, the U.S. Department of the Treasury is phasing out its issuance of paper savings bonds through employer-sponsored payroll savings plans.

Employees are encouraged to continue their purchases of U.S. Savings Bonds. But they will manage them through TreasuryDirect®, a secure Web-based system that lets investors buy and hold electronic savings bonds.

The paper payroll program ended for federal employees on September 30, 2010 and will end for non-federal employees on January 1, 2011. Only paper bonds issued through payroll savings plans are affected. Paper bonds will remain available through over-the-counter sales at financial institutions.

According to the Treasury, transitioning employees to electronic payroll purchases will save the Treasury and employers nearly $50 million over the first five years. ■

ADP.com enhancements make information easier to find

"We are constantly looking for ways to make it easier to find information," says David Means, Senior Director of Internet Marketing at ADP. To that end, ADP.com enhanced its "Products & Solutions" page this past October:

- A "Timely Topics" grid across the top showcases issues that may be of current concern (e.g., year-end processing in the fall, W-2 forms in December).
- Below that, a "Quick Links" section takes visitors directly to topics that, based on current site usage, they most commonly seek.
- Finally, a scrollable list of products and solutions lets you browse the complete list of ADP's offerings.

Similar enhancements have also been made to ADP.com's frequently visited "Tools & Resources" page. ■

Timely topics and frequently visited pages are now easier to spot. A scrollable list lets you browse ADP's complete set of offerings.

Special offer to ADP clients on solution from recently acquired talent management company

This past August, ADP announced its acquisition of Workscape, Inc., a premier provider of integrated benefits and talent management solutions and services. Workscape's Total Rewards approach has consistently helped organizations to achieve the highest return on one of their largest workforce expenditures: employee compensation.

Tim Clifford, co-founder, President and CEO of Workscape commented, "Since our founding in 1999, Workscape's track record of boosting employee satisfaction, controlling HR costs, and driving higher performance across enterprises has enabled us to achieve strong growth while earning the trust of our valued customers."

Through December 31st, ADP clients with more than 1,000 employees can add Workscape's Compensation Planner application to their ADP HR solution with no start-up cost. ■

This offer expires 12/31/2010. Contact your ADP Representative for more information.

Protect the exempt status of first-level managers

"A continuing trend is for the DOL and plaintiff-side employment lawyers to challenge the exempt status of first-level managers and assistant managers," Mr. Kirkpatrick warned. "This often happens in retail environments as well as small departments where it may be unclear if a manager supervises two or more full-time employees." If these workers perform tasks such as unloading, sorting, cleaning, customer service, or stocking shelves, they often take the position that they should have been classified as hourly workers who are not exempt from FLSA's overtime requirements. Mr. Kirkpatrick advised employers to:

- Limit nonexempt work by exempt managers where possible.
- Ensure that exempt managers supervise two or more full-time employees.
- Give exempt managers discretion to hire and discipline employees. ■

ASK THE ADP ADVISOR

Are wages paid to family members exempt from FICA tax withholding?

Q: My wife and son work part-time in my firm. Is it true that their wages may be exempt from employment tax withholding?

A: Federal income tax withholding is no different for relatives of the employer than it is for other employees. The requirements for Social Security and Medicare taxes, however, depend on the age and type of work performed by the particular family member:

- Spouse – Social Security and Medicare tax withholding applies, unless the spouse's services are not performed in the course of the employer's trade or business, or are for domestic service in your home. In either of these situations, the wages paid would be exempt. (This exemption does not apply to wages paid to the spouse by a corporation, partnership, or an estate.)
- Son or daughter under age 18 – Wages paid by the parent are exempt from Social Security and Medicare tax withholding. If the child is 18 years or older but under age 21, wages paid by the parent are exempt only if the services are not in the course of the employer's trade or business. As with the spouse, this exemption does not apply if the services are performed for a corporation, partnership (unless each partner is a parent of the child), or an estate.
- Parent – Wages paid to the employer's parent are subject to Social Security or Medicare taxes, unless the services being compensated are not in the course of the employer's trade or business. This exemption also applies to most types of domestic service performed in the employer's home.

Unless the employer is a corporation, partnership, or estate, the wages paid to a spouse, parent, or child under 21 are exempt from Federal unemployment tax (FUTA), as well. ■

Case Study

Hosted workforce management solution helps nonprofit improve efficiency, save money

"Our people called HR when they had any kind of question about pay, time off, benefits, and so forth," says Lorraine McCormick, Vice President of Human Resources & Team Building at Illinois-based Aspire, a leading provider of personalized services for individuals with developmental disabilities. "The process was time-intensive and inefficient," she adds. "We realized we needed a new system."

Aspire chose ADP's Workforce Now™, an integrated, hosted set of modular solutions for HR, payroll, time and attendance, and benefits administration. "With our server getting full and the legacy system frequently requiring 'patches,' ADP Workforce Now gave us a fresh way to manage HR," McCormick states.

ADP Workforce Now includes a self-service component that lets Aspire's employees access and manage their own benefits information. The organization has replaced its old time clocks with biometric time clocks at larger worksites. Employees at group homes can now "punch in" via a password-protected computer connection. "With ADP, you get a strong feeling that you are well taken care of if a question or problem comes up," Ms. McCormick says. "When we 'owned' our own system, I could never relax. You would always be waiting for the next system-related issue to come around the corner."

Return on investment

Thanks to Workforce Now, Aspire's HR department is no longer a call center. "We are paying less overtime, because ADP's time and attendance solution helps us schedule employees knowing who is approaching their overtime threshold," Ms. McCormick concludes. "Our employees access information online and can download and print forms as they need them. Now we can apply our professional knowledge to bigger issues that require the special expertise of our staff." ■
